

WAR AT FOUR CORNERS.

Mark Meacham Undertook to Run The School and His Neighbor's Children—William Bedor Injured.

Mark Meacham, who lives near the Four Corners evidently does not believe in arbitration when anything happens to his eight year old daughter, Eleanor, and he is settling today in municipal court for an outbreak of belligerency in which William Bedor received a dislocated shoulder, his son, Joseph, some severe blows and the school teacher, Miss Edna Brown, some violence and abusive language.

The affair started last Thursday at the forenoon recess when Joe Bedor, about 13 years old, was standing near Eleanor Meacham, an eight year old girl. Other school children playing horse ran against Joe and he fell over striking the Meacham girl and they both rolled down the bank. The teacher concluded that she would not allow Joe any more play that recess and called him into the school house. The Meacham girl felt that full justice had not been done and went home and told her father, Mark Meacham. At noon he came to the school and without consulting anyone began to search for Joe. He found him back of the school house and grabbing him by the throat began to predict what was going to happen. He told the boy to come to the school house with him but the boy allowed he had other engagements he would like to fill and in the scuffle Joe's fist came in contact with Meacham's nose quite forcibly. This crazed Meacham and he struck the boy several blows in the face. He then dragged the boy to the school house and began laying down the law to the teacher and further threatening the boy. She attempted to quiet the man down saying that she felt competent to deal with the case. But Meacham made another start for the boy and the teacher slammed the door together and held it. She promised to let the boy outside if Meacham would promise not to touch him but he only threatened the more.

One of the other children becoming frightened climbed out of a window and notified Mr. Bedor of the trouble whereupon the whole Bedor family marched double quick to the scene of war. It was but a short time before the two men clinched with each other and Meacham got the best of Bedor who in falling struck a corner of a desk with such force that he dislocated a shoulder. Mrs. Bedor and the older boys pulled Meacham off his victim and after a protracted wordy contest the parties repaired to their homes.

C. W. Steele, chairman of the board of school directors, was notified and with Supt. Palmer, the states attorney and sheriff went up and conducted a preliminary hearing. As a result Meacham was arrested yesterday and has a hearing today in municipal court.
